PART II TEACHING PLAN

Introduction

ATTENTION: A couple weeks ago, we worked on setting up a SARCAP activity for the unit. Today, we are going to do the same thing except for a Disaster Relief (DR) activity. A DR activity is very similar to a SARCAP but authorized by a different agency. A DR activity can be for several different missions as indicated in your Handout 1.

MOTIVATION: With the variety of natural events that can be experienced over the United States, participating in a DR mission is a very real possibility. Many CAP members have been the victim of Mother Nature and/or helped others during and after a severe natural event. But DR does not cover just natural events; it can cover man-made disasters as well. We all need to learn what to do to help and be prepared.

OVERVIEW: In Achievements 12 through 16, Staff Duty Analysis is part of the executive training. In this series of lessons on the Operations Officer, each cadet learns the various duties associated with the cadet operations officer including planning, coordinating, and setting up a DR for the unit.

TRANSITION: Shall we get started?

Body

Instructor's Note: Using Handout 1, have the cadets work together to plan, coordinate, and setup a DR for a weekend activity for the unit. It might be necessary to use senior members from other units in the area to fill the various positions required. It might be necessary to use the handouts from CAP5S2SDA14.1 as well.

Conclusion

SUMMARY: The cadets worked together in planning, coordinating, and setting up a DR for a weekend activity for the unit.

REMOTIVATION: During Phase IV of the cadet program, you will be helping other cadets keep up-to-date in the operational and emergency services area of the CAP program by the use of a practice DR mission.

CLOSURE: One of the three missions of Civil Air Patrol is search and rescue. Included in search and rescue is disaster relief. By holding a DR you are able to maintain your state of readiness and training. The more practice you have, the easier it is to perform your best during an actual disaster and to maintain your knowledge of the current methods used. Next we continue our review of Aerospace Education materials.
